SkyBridge Takes Luxury Air Travel to New Heights

Spa Services, Chilled Cristal, and Gourmet Food Are on the Menu

SkyBridge Private Air flies the Learjet 45, which can seat 8-9 passengers comfortably.

As the holidays approach, fuses get short. You can't use your frequent-flyer miles because the dates you want to fly are blacked out. You can't get your favorite first-class seat because it was booked a year in advance. And the horror stories of going through security checkpoints at airports are in the newspapers every day. So how does one get to grandma's house for the holidays without breaking a sweat?

Enter SkyBridge Private Air. This private jet service allows travelers to fly at their convenience without membership programs, maintenance fees, ownership commitments or prepayment arrangements. And if you think that a flight on SkyBridge Private Air is only a step up from first class, think again. SkyBridge's master-bedroom cabin suites on overnight flights feature top-of-the-line electronics and surround-sound audio. If your mindset is business first, SkyBridge Private Air can arrange for an in-flight secretary and a custom-designed office space featuring a deluxe media center.

On commercial flights these days, if food is available, you have to fork over $8 for a tasteless turkey sandwich. On SkyBridge, its in-flight menu features such culinary delights as a vegetable terrine with basil oil and white truffle gelee or lobster tempura with truffle sauce. Bar services are provided and feature such specialty drinks as vodka oyster shots and A-to-Z martinis.

For passengers who practice relaxation activities, SkyBridge has in-flight spa services that feature massages, manicures and pedicures, facials, yoga, reiki, palates, and meditation. Gourmet foods featuring popular diets such as Atkins, South Beach, and Zone are also available.

All these in-flight amenities are great, but how do you duplicate this type of service once you land? SkyBridge offers a comprehensive concierge service that can arrange dinner reservations at that cozy three-star Michelin restaurant you heard about, or getting a babysitting service, or making sure a limousine is at your beck and call, or contracting for a translator if you're in a foreign country. Personal security and emergency medical assistance can also be arranged through the concierge.

During the period of Thanksgiving to New Year's Eve, SkyBridge is offering complimentary limousine transportation to and from its jets, a bottle of Cristal chilled and ready for enjoyment, and special holiday menus.

SkyBridge operates at any location equipped with an FAA-approved runway. For more information, call (888) SKY-0001, or click on www.skybridgeprivateair.com. M
